Dear Member,

The Federal Education Association (FEA), in partnership with the National Education Association (NEA), is taking a stand to protect your rights.

We've filed a lawsuit yesterday evening challenging the Trump administration's executive order that strips federal educators of their lawful collective bargaining rights under the false premise of national security. This order threatens not only our contracts and working conditions—but the very principles of fairness, due process, and professional respect.

Below is the full press release with more details on the lawsuit, our legal position, and what's at stake.

In solidarity,
Federal Education Association
