Hi Member,

Below is an update on the FEA lawsuit.

Update on FEA Lawsuit

FEA has been informed that all the Federal Union lawsuits regarding Executive Order (EO) 14251, which sought to eliminate collective bargaining in numerous agencies, that have been moving through the U.S. Federal Courts in DC, including the FEA/NEA case, have been consolidated into a single hearing scheduled for December.

Importantly, the preliminary injunction FEA/NEA secured remains in place until a decision is issued. This means that for at least the next two plus months, our Negotiated Agreement and MLA provisions remain in full force and DoDEA must continue to honor Chapter 71 rights for educators.

This development provides stability for FEA members, though some matters may be impacted by shutdown. Nevertheless, your contracts and rights are protected through at least December, and possibly longer, depending on the court's decision.

We will share more information as the case moves forward. For now, FEA members can be assured that our agreements remain intact and enforceable.

In solidarity,
Federal Education Association
